“ One of my last real pictures of Granny that I can share. I am your namesake... As I child I didn't really see the significance in my name. No one could every pronounce it. They called me Daisy... it used to upset me something fierce. But now I wear your name proud... I am honored to carry your name with me into my final days.

I miss you so much. You were my inspiration of what a true independent, strong, beautiful, God fearing women was supposed to be. I'm going to miss your words of wisdom, your love, your hymn singing but most of all your prayer warring. I feel that loss so significantly now. My mind goes back to a day that I felt like the world was caving in around my shoulders and I called you just because I just needed to hear your voice and share in your wisdom. You told me that just about to call me as you were thinking of me and that God had put me in your heart to pray for me. You asked if you could sing me a hymn and pray for me. And you sang comfort to me in that very moment. All my troubles just seemed to melt away. When I got off the phone I felt my strength come back and I was ready to face the world. I knew that every day there was a guarantee prayer or two for me and our family that would go straight to God's ear. Our family is not going to truly understand that impact of your loss until much later.

I see so much of you in my mother, your oldest daughter. I see you in my Aunts your other daughters but there will NEVER be another you. God had created a perfect being in you that once he was done he broke the mold. The earth is crying today because we lost such a valiant beautiful creature but I know that heaven threw a celebration that you were finally among the stars. No star shines as brightly as you my sweet Angel. I want you to rest now our good and faithful servant. I will never forget you. You will always be with me.

Your last words to was that I was your oldest granddaughter and that you loved me so much I carry those words with me you didn't want me to leave you because you will be alone. But I didn't leave you to be alone, you are in the arms of Our Lord... where you go I can't be with you right now but I know you are in good hands and you are with my grandfather, my uncles and aunts and my cherished and missed father.

I cherish every memory we shared together. It has been my privilege to share 47 beautiful years as your oldest granddaughter. I love you my darling Grandmother! Shine bright. Until we meet again!

Always,
Your Oldest Granddaughter
